The choices are between canvas panels and regular canvas.

Question: "What's the difference between canvas and canvas board?"

Answer: Canvas boards are solid panels with canvas linen tightly stretched over them. They're flat and durable, and they can fit in frames more easily. But they do require framing if you wish to display them effectively.

Traditional canvases are canvas linen stretched over a timber frame. Easier to hang up on a wall (without framing), but more prone to damage (i.e. tears/rips).

Canvas Options

There's Single Thick, and there's Double Thick canvas.

Single Thick is a more cost effective and thinner canvas for easier transport, whilst Double Thick is slightly more expensive, but has a stronger, reinforced timber frame, making it less prone to damage.

Please consider these differences when choosing which one you'd prefer.
